

California cabinet maker relocates to South Texas

When it comes time for new cabinets, entertainment centers, or other built-in woodworking, consider calling The Finish Carpenter.

Establishing their business in Southern California in 1995, Jack and Patricia Van Dieren, who have been married for 26 years, spent nearly two decades working hard to satisfy customers. Recently, the couple made the decision to move their business to Floresville, and are dedicated to serving residents in and around Wilson County.

The Finish Carpenter is a custom cabinet maker, specializing in kitchen cabinets, entertainment centers, home offices, libraries, and bathroom vanities. The company is a Corian-certified dealer, and it uses Blum hardware.

Jack and Patricia said their emphasis is on quality and workmanship, which they believe make their work stand out from the competition. Pat said the price of their custom cabinets, which utilize every inch of space available, are also on par with the prices of ready-made cabinets from home improvement stores, once they add on the price for demolition, shipping, and installation.

"Nine out of ten times, we end up costing the same amount as those stores," Pat said. "And Jack builds everything custom — with no wasted space."
