Bathroom drains are susceptible to stoppages and when plumbing problems occur even more dirty secrets are revealed! Installing a drain filter and regularly cleaning out hair after showering can save you a lot of hassle in the long run!

Tree roots growing in pipes and degradation of pipes are a problem that can cause a huge stink as the whole sewage system will block up. Another cause of a backup is the accumulation of debris, make sure your main sewer line is cleaned often to prevent a build-up and possible main stoppage.

Your kitchen sink can only take so much oil and fat and waste before there is a blockage, even with a garbage disposal to help. Make sure you wipe excess oil and fat off pans and plates. Remove uneaten food from pots, pans, and plates. Install a drain filter and you could be spared the ugly truth.

Call a plumber if you notice any unusual reactions when using household fixtures

1. Toilets have the most direct path to the sewer and are the biggest line in the house. You will first notice it here!
2. Slow draining tub and/or shower. This is due to the fact that they sit at a lower level than sink drains.
3. If flushing toilets result in water backing up into the shower this is usually a clear sign of a sewer clog.
4. Run the sink, if the toilet bubbles or if the water level in the toilet rises, a clog is very likely in the main sewer line.
5. An unexpected sign of a sewer drain clog can happen when you run the washing machine.
